Preview: A Ghost Story

USA 2017. Dir David Lowery. With Rooney Mara, Casey Affleck, Sonia Acevedo, Carlos Bermudez. 87min. Digital. Cert TBC. Courtesy of Picturehouse Entertainment

Rooney Mara and Casey Affleck play an unnamed couple living in an isolated house. After he dies suddenly, he returns as a white-sheeted ghost and is forced to watch his wife grieve. Shot quickly and almost in secret, David Lowery's (Ain't Them Bodies Saints) exploration of time and memory is a delicate, unconventional film that subverts the horror genre.

Preview: Atomic Blonde

USA 2017. Dir David Leitch. With Charlize Theron, Sofia Boutella, James McAvoy, Bill Skarsgard. 115min. Digital. Cert TBC. Courtesy of Universal Pictures

Lorraine Broughton (Theron), a top-level spy for MI6, is dispatched to Berlin to take down an espionage ring, where she forms an uneasy alliance with Berlin station chief David Percival (McAvoy). Set during the final days of the Berlin Wall, this neon-tinted thriller from one of the makers of John Wick clearly positions Theron as the action hero we need right now.

Preview: The Odyssey L'odyssée

France 2016. Dir Jérôme Salle. With Lambert Wilson, Pierre Niney, Audrey Tautou. 122min. Digital. Cert TBC. Courtesy of Altitude Film Entertainment

Pioneer. Innovator. Filmmaker. Adventurer. World-renowned captain Jacques-Yves Cousteau (Wilson) was many things. Salle's film charts the explorer's life through 30 years, from his dramatic decision to quit his military career and devote himself to the sea, to his status as a major opinion-maker. However, Cousteau's flaws are not shied away from either, and his fraught relationship with his favourite son Philippe (Niney) imbues this biopic with a nuanced emotional anchor. Boasting gorgeous underwater cinematography, The Odyssey is a fine tribute to the lure of the sea and the oceanic wonders that so captivated Cousteau.

Preview: Daphne

UK 2016. Dir Peter Mackie Burns. With Emily Beecham, Geraldine James, Tom Vaughan-Lawlor. 87min. Digital. Cert TBC. Courtesy of Altitude

Long days. Busy nights. Repeat. Such is the hectic life of 31-year-old chef Daphne (Beecham, in a no-holds-barred performance), who tries to drown out the nagging feeling that she's stuck in a rut. Independent, straightforward and just a tad misanthropic, she's deeply shaken after she witnesses a violent event that causes her to question her worldview. Daphne is a powerful character study, and a portrait of London life that will surely resonate with early-midlife crisis millennials.

Tickets £15, concs £12 (Members pay £2 less)

Preview: God's Own Country + Q&A with writer-director Francis Lee

UK 2017. Dir Francis Lee. With Josh O'Connor, Alec Secareanu, Gemma Jones, Ian Hart. 104min. Digital. Cert TBC. Courtesy of Picturehouse Entertainment

Yorkshire sheep farmer Johnny (O'Connor) is dedicated to keeping his family's farm afloat after his father's stroke. He finds release from his exhausting everyday life through binge drinking and casual sex. When lambing season comes along, his family recruits some help in the form of Romanian worker Gheorghe (Secareanu), who conjures unspoken emotions in Johnny. After its premiere earlier this year at Sundance Film Festival, Francis Lee's astonishing debut feature marks him as a powerful new voice in British filmmaking.

TV Preview: Strike: The Cuckoo's Calling + discussion with actors Tom Burke and Holliday Grainger, director Michael Keillor, writer Ben Richards and executive producer Ruth Kenley-Letts

BBC 2017. Dir Michael Keillor. With Tom Burke, Holliday Grainger, Tara Fitzgerald, Siân Phillips, Martin Shaw. Ep1 60min

Cormoran Strike (Burke), a war veteran-turned-private detective, operates out of a tiny office in London's Denmark Street with his assistant Robin (Grainger). Though he's wounded both physically and psychologically, Strike's unique insight and his background in the Special Investigation Branch prove crucial in solving complex cases, which have eluded the police. The Cuckoo's Calling is the first book in the best-selling Cormoran Strike crime series written by JK Rowling under the pseudonym Robert Galbraith. This major new adaptation by Ben Richards (The Tunnel, Spooks) is produced by JK Rowling's production company Brontë Film and TV.

Hotel Salvation Mukti Bhawan

India 2016. Dir Shubhashish Bhutiani. With Adil Hussain, Lalit Behl, Geetanjali Kulkarni. 99min. Digital. Hindi with EST. 12A. A BFI release

A warm tale of life and relationships, embedded in Indian culture and Hindu rituals. Daya, a 77-year-old father, and Rajiv, his over-worked accountant son, journey to the eponymous Hotel Salvation in the awe-inspiring holy city of Varanasi. Rajiv struggles with anxieties about his responsibilities back home, while Daya (whose prophetic dream about his own death led them there) starts to bloom in the hotel as he befriends a delightful widow. The simple pleasures of this timeless city are explored as father and son belatedly come to know each other in the enforced intimacy of their cramped hotel room and the teaming streets. With superb performances from renowned actors Adil Hussain (Life of Pi), Lalit Behl (Titli) and Geetanjali Kulkarni (Court), this gentle and tender multi award-winning film will make you laugh and cry.

Howards End

UK-Japan-USA 1992. Dir James Ivory. With Emma Thompson, Helena Bonham Carter, Anthony Hopkins, Vanessa Redgrave. 142min. Digital 4K (in NFT1 and NFT3, 2K elsewhere). PG. A BFI release

A new 25th anniversary 4K restoration of one of Merchant Ivory's masterpieces. Nominated for nine Academy Awards, this landmark adaptation of EM Forster's classic novel is about the interwoven fates and misfortunes of three families in Edwardian England. Full of lavish sets and elegant costumes, the film tells the stories of two respectable sisters, Margaret (Thompson) and Helen Schlegel (Bonham Carter), who collide with the world of the very wealthy – one sister benefiting from acquaintance with the Wilcoxes (owners of the beloved country home Howards End), the other all but destroyed by it. Compelling and brilliantly acted, the film remains an entertaining, exquisite and elegant pleasure, as moving and relevant as it was on the day of its original release.

CONTINUES FROM FRI 28 JUL

Prick Up Your Ears + Q&A with director Stephen Frears*

UK 1987. Dir Stephen Frears. With Gary Oldman, Alfred Molina, Vanessa Redgrave, Wallace Shawn, Julie Walters. 110min. Digital. 15. A Park Circus release

Prick Up Your Ears still feels as daring and fresh as it did on its release 30 years ago. Adapted by Alan Bennett from John Lahr's biography of rebel playwright Joe Orton, the film has two outstanding lead performances. Gary Oldman plays the charming Orton, who was the toast of the London stage in the mid-60s, delighting and shocking audiences with his biting satires Loot, What the Butler Saw and Entertaining Mr Sloane. Alfred Molina is Orton's stolid and resentful partner Kenneth Halliwell. Orton, a true iconoclast, is blatantly unfaithful to his partner – cruising subways and public lavatories – and the older, stuffier Halliwell comes to regret encouraging this behaviour. Stephen Frears brilliantly captures all the nuances in this bleak and ultimately tragic relationship.

FRI 4 AUG 18:00 NFT1*, THEN ON EXTENDED RUN

Le doulos

France-Italy 1962. Dir Jean-Pierre Melville. With Jean-Paul Belmondo, Serge Reggiani, Michel Piccoli, Jean Desailly. 109min. Digital 4K (in NFT1 and NFT3, 2K elsewhere). EST

The first in Melville's great series of thrillers is a dazzlingly intricate tale of deadly suspicion and betrayal. Though Silien (Belmondo) is believed by some in the Parisian crime community to be a police informer, Maurice (Reggiani), a burglar just out of prison, trusts his friend enough to have let on about a job he's lined up. But when a cop turns up mid-robbery, Maurice, wounded in his escape, has second thoughts and swears revenge... Establishing an atmosphere of unease, distrust and deception with a beautifully staged opening scene, Melville combines ingenious plot twists with a near-mythic evocation of underworld customs and fashions. Belmondo's youthful charm and Reggiani's hangdog decency both prove enormously effective, while Nicolas Hayer's camerawork is simply terrific. Finally, however, it's the shadowy tangle of ambiguities, enigmas and cruel ironies that make this film so special.

BIG SCREEN CLASSICS

The timeless films we urge you to see

A Question of Climate

As in life, so in cinema: weather exerts an enormous, even decisive influence, both on individuals and on geographical regions. But because films are the stuff of artifice, their creators (to some degree, anyway) control the climate of their narratives, deploying it for dramatic or metaphorical purposes. This month and next, our daily screenings of classics examine just how much weather can matter.

Tickets for these screenings are only £8

Pierrot le fou

France-Italy 1965. Dir Jean-Luc Godard. With Jean-Paul Belmondo, Anna Karina, Dirk Sanders. 110min. Digital. EST. 15

Bored with his staid, bourgeois existence in Paris, Ferdinand (Belmondo) abandons his family and heads south for the Mediterranean with ex-girlfriend Marianne (Karina), pursued by gangsters and leading a wayward life of crime. The sun-baked Riviera may represent freedom and passion but – as the fugitive romantic couple discover – it can also be languid, even dangerously hot.

Big Wednesday + intro by Geoff Andrew, Programmer-at-large*

USA 1978. Dir John Milius. With Jan-Michael Vincent, William Katt, Gary Busey, Patti D'Arbanville. 119min. 35mm. PG

Milius' partly autobiographical film about the fortunes of three surfing-fanatic friends – from the sun-kissed summer of 1962 to the chilly Great Swell of spring 74 – is a witty, bittersweet chronicle of the loss of innocence, with age, illness, war and changing fads all taking their toll. Strangely affecting, it's an improbably personal, lyrical and epic variation on the coming-of-age movie.

WED 2 AUG 18:10 NFT1*/ FRI 11 AUG 20:30 NFT3

Key Largo

USA 1948. Dir John Huston. With Humphrey Bogart, Edward G Robinson, Lauren Bacall. 100min. 35mm. PG

Superbly acted (not least by the supporting cast of Claire Trevor, Lionel Barrymore and Thomas Gomez), this taut, tense adaptation of a Maxwell Anderson play sees a hoodlum (Robinson) threatened with deportation holed up and taking hostages – including Bogart's disillusioned ex-army officer – in a run-down Florida hotel. An approaching hurricane plays its dramatic and metaphorical part in the fraught (and morally nuanced) proceedings.

Chinatown

USA 1974. Dir Roman Polanski. With Jack Nicholson, Faye Dunaway, John Huston. 130min. Digital. 15

Los Angeles, long famous for year-long sun (it's why the movie business moved there), was once also prone to drought. Polanski and writer Robert Towne update classic detective movie conventions to make marvellously ironic use of what seems a sunlit paradise built upon dark, subterranean foundations, where the ruthless quest for water is just one aspect of primeval corruption.

The Bridges of Madison County + intro by Geoff Andrew, Programmer-at-large*

USA 1995. Dir Clint Eastwood. With Clint Eastwood, Meryl Streep, Annie Corley. 134min. Digital. 12A

One of the greatest weepies of the last few decades, Eastwood's film of Robert James Waller's best-seller makes highly expressive use of weather to enhance the unsentimental yet deeply affecting account of the short, entirely unexpected but life-changing affair in 60s Iowa between a happily married mother (Streep) and a photographer (Eastwood). Rarely has rain seemed so eloquent.

Seven Samurai Shichinin no samurai

Japan 1954. Dir Akira Kurosawa. With Takashi Shimura, Toshiro Mifune, Yoshio Inaba. 207min. 35mm. EST. PG

Kurosawa was constantly alert to the dramatic and visual opportunities offered by weather and the natural landscape, and in the finest of all his samurai films – in which a band of warriors agree to defend an impoverished village repeatedly suffering raids by vicious bandits – he makes memorably effective use of a torrential downpour in the virtuoso climactic battle sequence.

Day of Wrath Vredens dag

Denmark 1943. Dir Carl Theodor Dreyer. Thorkild Roose, Lisbeth Movin, Preben Lerdorff Rye. 97min. 35mm. EST. PG

Set in 17th-century Denmark, Dreyer's magisterial film concerns the tender, risky and guilt-laden relationship between the young second wife of an elderly parson – who has sent women to the stake for witchcraft – and her stepson. Sun-dappled rural idylls suggest love, an icy gust of wind on an evening walk, something far darker. Stark, sombre and emotionally very intense.

The Wind + intro by Bryony Dixon, BFI National Archive, plus Photoplay score*

USA 1928. Dir Victor Sjöström. With Lillian Gish, Lars Hanson, Montagu Love. 95min. With live piano accompaniment on Sun 27 Aug

Sjöström's silent masterpiece boasts Gish as the innocent young Virginian travelling West to live with relatives on a windswept Texan prairie, only to find herself imperilled in all sorts of ways. As the film shifts from low-key naturalism to full-on melodramatic symbolism, Sjöström – shooting the climactic sandstorm in the Mojave – makes the weather an astonishingly vivid index of the protagonist's mental state.

Boudu Saved from Drowning Boudu sauvé des eaux

France 1932. Dir Jean Renoir. With Michel Simon, Charles Granval, Marcelle Hainia. 86min. Digital. EST. PG

Though, at the start, the titular tramp is saved from suicide in the Seine, Renoir's gleefully irreverent comedy embodies the joys (and spirit) of spring as Boudu repays his bourgeois saviour's generosity by becoming a house guest of the most ungrateful and disruptive kind. The tramp's anarchic vitality is reflected in Renoir's breezy shooting style, and the glorious summery ending.

Germany 1929. Dirs Robert Siodmak, Edgar G Ulmer. With Erwin Splettstosser, Brigitte Borchert, Christl Ehlers. 74min. Digital. With Donald Sosin score

Famously, Billy Wilder and Fred Zinnemann worked with Siodmak on this landmark of realist filmmaking, in which non-professionals act out an 'everyday', uneventful story of several young Berliners using their Sunday to spend a flirtatious day together at a lake on the edge of the city. With its massive cast of unpaid extras enjoying the summer sun, this classic silent film feels remarkably modern.

USA 1968. Dir Frank Perry. With Burt Lancaster, Janet Landgard, Janice Rule. 95min. Digital. PG

Taken from a John Cheever story, this eccentric but highly engrossing drama follows an affluent, middle-aged New Englander (Lancaster), first encountered clad only in trunks at a friend's pool party, as he decides to swim home using a seemingly unbroken string of backyard pools. Partly satirical, partly allegorical, the film shifts steadily away from its initial summer mood towards something more chilling.

Rohmer's partly improvised masterpiece concerns a young Parisian's attempts to find happiness – and, perhaps, since it seems she's just been dumped, a new lover – during the tricky month of August, when everyone leaves the city to take a holiday. An unsentimental but deeply sympathetic portrait of an idealistic, sometimes irritatingly indecisive protagonist, the film makes hugely expressive use of wind, clouds, shadows and sun.

AFRICAN ODYSSEYS

Important films from Africa and its diaspora

Ola Balogun, Pioneer of Nigerian Cinema

In the 1970s and 80s, Nigerian writer, filmmaker and musician Ola Balogun (b. 1945) set the bar high for a lasting, independent Nigerian cinema and paved the way for contemporaries such as Ade Love, Sir Hubert Ogunde and Eddie Ugbomah. This programme proposes to rediscover one of the pioneers and foremost filmmakers of African cinema, a man with a unique voice and vision and a Pan-African view of history and culture. Synopses by Gary Vanisian, editor and contributing author of The Magic of Nigeria. On the cinema of Ola Balogun (Filmkollektiv Frankfurt 2016). We hope to invite Gary Vanisian and other speakers to this very special programme of screenings, please check bfi.org.uk for updates or sign up to the BFI mailing list

Cry Freedom!

Nigeria-Ghana-UK 1981. Dir Ola Balogun. With Albert Hall, Roberto Pirillo, Prunella Gee. 70min. 35mm

Balogun's vision of a truly revolutionary 'pan-African' film adapts Kenian author Meja Mwangi's novel Carcase for Hounds, to which, however, the final screenplay bears only a small resemblance. Kingsley, a captain of the British army, and the rebel leader Haraka, who have known each other a long time, continue their relentless confrontation during the uprising of Haraka's Guerrilla army.

Black Goddess A deusa negra

Brazil-Nigeria 1978. Dir Ola Balogun. With Zózimo Bulbul, Jorge Coutinho, Sônia Santos. 95min. 35mm. EST

Balogun assembled a fine array of Brazilian actors and crew members to create probably his most elaborate film – the story of a young Nigerian's journey to Brazil in search of his ancestral roots. Balogun's recurring thematic interest, the 'cracks between the two worlds', the intertwining of reality and the world of myth and ritual, is represented here by the arcane Candomblé cult.

40th Anniversary: The Sealed Soil Khake Sar Beh Morh + Q&A with director Marva Nabili

Iran 1977. Dir Marva Nabili. With Flora Shabaviz. 90min. 16mm. EST

Eighteen-year-old Rooy-Bekheir rejects suitor after suitor as she struggles for independence and identity in her southern Iranian village. The Sealed Soil, the first independent feature by an Iranian woman director, was shot clandestinely before being smuggled out of pre-revolution Iran for post-production. It achieved international success, including winning Most Outstanding Film of the Year at the 1977 London Film Festival, but has never been shown in Iran. The beautifully shot film has been compared stylistically to Chantal Akerman's Jeanne Dielman. This is a rare chance to see a feminist classic on the director's own 16mm print.

USA 1977. Dir George Barry. With William Russ, Julie Ritter, Linda Bond, Demene Hall. 77min. 18

One-time director George Barry's near-indecribable mix of arthouse surrealism and grubby exploitation is quite possibly the most inexplicable 80 minutes ever committed to celluloid – it concerns a possessed four-poster bed with an insatiable appetite for flesh. Undeniably preposterous, but not without its fair share of idiosyncratic style, this ultra low-budget oddity is every bit as weird and wonderful as it sounds.

Snowbound + intro by BFI curator Jo Botting

UK 1947. Dir David MacDonald. With Robert Newton, Dennis Price, Herbert Lom, Stanley Holloway. 85min. 35mm. U

To mark the centenary of Czech-born actor Herbert Lom on 11 September, we bring to the screen an archive print of this Gainsborough thriller. Based on Hammond Innes' novel The Lonely Skier, the film brilliantly taps into the post-war mood, with Dennis Price as an ex-serviceman who relishes the chance to recapture the thrill of his wartime exploits as he's plunged into an espionage plot. Opening with fascinating scenes in a film studio, Snowbound then transports us to a hut in the Dolomites where a group of shady characters gather in search of hidden treasure. Lom's performance stands out among an excellent cast, and his quiet, brooding presence dominates his every scene.

Matinees and talks for the over 60s

Seniors' Free Talk: Indian Film and Partition with Lalit Mohan Joshi, South Asian Cinema Foundation

TRT 120min

Lalit Mohan-Joshi, director of the SACF presents his film Beyond Partition (UK-India 2006. 65min), which explores the trauma of Partition and its impact on filmmakers including Gulzar and Govind Nihalani (director of Tamas). The film also features cinema veterans Sathyu, Shyam Benegal, script writer Shama Zaidi and Sabiha Sumar. Connecting past and present, it highlights issues that inform both Hindu-Muslim and India-Pakistan relations today.

Free for over-60s (booking by phone or in person only), otherwise normal matinee price

Seniors' Archive Free Matinee: I Am Cuba Soy Cuba

Soviet Union-Cuba 1964. Dir Mikhail Kalatozov. With Sergio Corrieri, Salvador Wood, José Gallardo. 134min. 35mm. EST. PG

One of the outstanding films of the 1960s, this quartet of evocative vignettes from pre-revolutionary Cuba rarely appears in dictionaries of film, and was not shown in the US until the 90s, when directors including Martin Scorsese began a campaign to restore the work. This masterpiece of world cinema is screening to complement to our season of Cuban documentary and avant-garde cinema.

Free for over-60s (booking by phone or in person only), otherwise normal matinee price

SILENT CINEMA

Celebrating the best international restorations

Sex in Chains Geschlecht in Fesseln

Germany 1928. Dir Wilhelm Dieterle. With Wilhelm Dieterle, Mary Johnson, Gunnar Tolnaes, Paul Henckels. 107min. Format tbc. With live piano accompaniment

Self-censorship in the silent era prevented the vast majority of filmmakers from portraying homosexuality directly. The very few unambiguous references all seem to appear in films made in Germany during the liberal Weimar era. Although Dieterle's Sex in Chains is essentially a social problem film dealing with prison reform, it's also a convenient device for showing a homosexual encounter. Far from being judgmental, the film lays the breakdown of marriage at the door of a penal system that doesn't allow conjugal visits, and makes the innocent suffer as well as the incarcerated. The issue of same-sex attraction is stated quite matter-of-factly here; the wife certainly recognises it immediately when her husband and his former cellmate meet again.

INDIA ON FILM EVENT

Tamas Darkness

India 1987. Dir Govind Nihalani. With Om Puri, Deepa Sahi, Dina Pathak, Bhisham Sahni, Amrish Puri. 298min. Video. Hindi with EST. 7hrs (including 1hr interval)

An epic drama set against the backdrop of riot-stricken North India on the eve of Partition in 1947. Nathu (Puri), an outcast, is hired to kill a pig, whose carcass he's later appalled to find in front of the mosque. A riot follows and, ridden with guilt, Nathu takes his ailing mother and pregnant wife and leaves town. Hindu and Muslim fundamentalists protested against the TV broadcast of this popular work, and director Govind Nihalani was put under police protection. 'Making Tamas was an act of faith...' he said. 'When Partition happened, I was a little kid but my first memory of fear, panic and blood comes from that period.' The stellar star cast includes AK Hangal, Uttara Baokar and acclaimed writer Bhisham Sahni, on whose novel this film is based. The screening will be followed by a discussion in the Blue Room (free to ticket holders), in which we hope to welcome the director and also Lalit Mohan Joshi of the South Asian Cinema Foundation.
